On the Waterfront

Richard Kaufman Conducts New West Symphony performing Leonard Bernstein’s only film score

Saturday, February 24 at 8:00pm

(Los Angeles, CA) February xx, 2018 - Leonard Bernstein made one foray into Hollywood with an original film score: the 1954 romantic tragedy On the Waterfront, which is ranked by the American Film Institute as one of the ten best films of all time. On Saturday, February 24 at 8pm, On the Waterfront will exuberantly come to life when the Younes and Soraya Nazarian Center for the Performing Arts (The Soraya) presents Richard Kaufman conducting Bernstein’s electrifying score live, while the newly re-mastered film is shown in glorious high definition on the big screen with original dialogue intact.

“We conclude our Bernstein celebration this season with this film masterpiece that connects us, not only with this American musical genius, but also with Los Angeles’ cinema history and our New West Symphony colleagues once again,” said Thor Steingraber, The Soraya’s Executive Director. “New West Symphony continues to be a great partner for us and to once again welcome back Richard Kaufman to his alma mater always makes for a special occasion.”

New West Symphony collaborates regularly with The Soraya for the past few seasons. In addition to their recent collaboration on Bernstein on Stage, they’ve collaborated with The Soraya to present Buster Keaton’s The General with live orchestral accompaniment, as well as Stewart Copeland’s orchestral score to Ben Hur: A Tale of the Christ.

Tickets for On the Waterfront, priced from $33-$68, are now available at ValleyPerformingArtsCenter.org News Release or by calling (818) 677-3000. The Younes and Soraya Nazarian Center for the Performing Arts (The Soraya) is located on the campus of California State University, Northridge (CSUN), 18111 Nordhoff Street Northridge, CA 91330-8448, at the corner of Nordhoff and Lindley.

About On the Waterfront

Based on his own original story, screenwriter and novelist Budd Schulberg teamed with successful Broadway director Elia Kazan, who found in Schulberg’s script a story he wanted to tell. The film focuses on union violence and corruption amongst longshoremen detailing the widespread exploitation, extortion and racketeering on the New York waterfronts in the early 1950’s. In the film, Terry Malloy (Marlon Brando) – a former boxer and now part-time enforcer for Johnny Friendly (Lee J. Cobb), the powerful mob boss who controls the longshoremen’s union local – meets Father Barry, a waterfront priest (Karl Malden), and Edie Doyle (Eva Marie Saint), the grieving sister of a dock worker who was murdered for daring to testify against the corrupt union officials. Terry eventually decides to testify, too, pitting him against not only Friendly but his own brother Charley Malloy (Rod Steiger), Friendly’s lieutenant.

The film swept the 1955 awards season and Bernstein’s score was nominated for an Academy Award—one of twelve nominations. On the Waterfront was named Best Picture of 1955. It also received Academy Awards Best Director (Elia Kazan), Best Actor (Marlon Brando), Best Screenplay (Budd Schulberg), Best Supporting Actress (Eva Marie Saint), Best Art Direction (Richard Day), Best Cinematography (Boris Kaufman) and Best Editing (Gene Milford). In 1989, the film was deemed, “culturally, historically or aesthetically significant” by the Library of Congress and selected for preservation in the United States Film Registry

About the Music for On The Waterfront

Leonard Bernstein wrote only one original film score in his career, On the Waterfront, a story about a troubled longshoreman and one-time boxing contender who’s gotten mixed up with the wrong crowd. Like Brando’s characterization of Terry Malloy, Bernstein’s score is a mixture of tenderness, violence, and nobility.

When Bernstein was asked to compose the score for On the Waterfront, he was 35, a major celebrity and unlikely candidate for the job. However, he felt “a surge of excitement” after seeing an early cut of the film and that he was “swep[t] by my enthusiasm into accepting.” The original New York Times review said, “Bernstein, who herein is making his debut as a movie composer... convincingly illustrated the murder and mayhem of the waterfront’s sleazy jungles.” Life referred to the film’s “somber mood, created at the outset by a chilling musical score by Leonard Bernstein.” And Time summed it up this way: “In his score for On the Waterfront, some critics heard a new note in Bernstein’s music, a curiously piercing purity that seemed to burst from a hot core of originality.”
